IF NOAH LIVED TODAY

In this very modern age, if the ancient Mr. Noah were to stage his thrilling rescue act it would be "all different".

The barometer in this private observatory registers "Big Flood Coming". So Noah dashes right into his broadcasting station and tells the whole world to the tune of P. D. Q.

His message brings quick results and a pair of each species is selected and brought to Jersey, to be loaded on the Shenandoah. When they sail away we find Noah has loaded the skunks on a private air yacht. Once under way they climb up on the main ship and trouble begins. It all ends in almost disaster and a complete change of clothes, even Noah is on the clothes line. He coaxes the skunks out on the clothes line then tries to cut it but they jump on his head and play "merry-go-round". Proving that "Familiarty Breeds Contempt".
